COMMISSION, et al.,

Defendants.

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO COMPEL; GRANTING
PLAINTIFF'S REQUEST FOR LATE
FILING; DENYING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION TO QUASH; VACATING
HEARING; AND FINDING MOOT
PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO CONTINUE

(Docket Nos. 167, 178-80)

17 Currently pending before the Court is Defendant the California Public Utilities
18 Commission's motion to compel the oral deposition of Plaintiff Donna Hines and Ms. Hines's cross-
19 motion to quash her oral deposition. Based on the its review of the papers, the Court concludes that 20 a hearing on the motions is not necessary and that a ruling may be issued based on the papers alone.
21 For the reasons discussed below, the Court hereby GRANTS Defendant's motion and DENIES
22 Plaintiff's. The Court also VACATES the November 6, 2009, hearing on the discovery motions and 23 finds moot Plaintiff's request for a continuance of the hearing. Finally, the Court GRANTS
24 Plaintiff's request to file her opposition to Defendant's motion late because Defendant has not 25 suffered any material prejudice as a result of the late filing.

I. DISCUSSION

27 Plaintiff has filed suit against Defendant, asserting claims under both federal and state law.
28 In essence, Plaintiff alleges both racial discrimination as well as retaliation. Defendant seeks to

1 depose Plaintiff prior to the fact discovery cut-off, which is currently set for December 1, 2009.¹ See
2 Docket No. 125 (case management order). Plaintiff opposes an oral deposition but is willing to be
3 subjected to a written deposition or to interrogatories. Plaintiff's opposition is, for the most part,
4 predicated on her assertion that Defendant seeks to depose her orally in order to take advantage of 5 her pro se status and invade her attorney-client privilege.

6 The Court rejects Plaintiff's position. Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 30, Defendant
7 has the right to depose Plaintiff by oral questions without leave of court. See Fed. R. Civ. P.
8 30(a)(1). Plaintiff, in turn, has the right to challenge the oral deposition pursuant to Federal Rule of 9 Civil Procedure 26(c) but has failed to establish good cause to prevent the oral deposition from 10 taking place. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c) (providing that a "court may, for good cause, issue an order
11 to protect a party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or 12 expense"). Plaintiff initiated this litigation. Clearly, she is a key witness in this case. Thus,
13 Defendant's desire to take her oral deposition, rather than being limited by written questions, is 14 justified.

15 That Plaintiff is pro se should not be a bar to the oral deposition, particularly in the absence
16 of any evidence suggesting that Defendant has tried to take advantage of that status. To the extent
17 Plaintiff has concerns that Defendant may seek to invade any privilege she has during the 18 deposition, she is not prevented from objecting to a specific question or questions on the basis of a
19 privilege. The Court further notes that the primary privilege case on which Plaintiff relies, Shelton
20 v. American Motors Corp., 805 F.2d 1323 (8th Cir. 1986), is not on point. Shelton dealt with the 21 issue of when an opposing party's trial attorney may be deposed. In the instant case, Plaintiff is not
22 an attorney. Furthermore, even though she is representing herself, the fact remains that she is a
23 percipient fact witness. Finally, the Court notes that, even if the attorney-client or work product
24 privilege were at issue, neither privilege would protect a witness from answering questions about the 25 underlying facts in a lawsuit.

¹ A final pretrial conference, however, is not scheduled until 7/20/2010. See Docket No. 125
(case management order).

1 Plaintiff contends that, if the Court does permit an oral deposition, that it should put certain
2 limitations on the deposition. See Opp'n at 8 (listing limitations). Similar to above, the Court finds
3 that there is no good cause for any of the limitations requested. For example, Plaintiff has failed to 4 show why Defendant should have to provide her with a complete set of questions that it wishes to 5 have answered in advance of the oral deposition. Notably, such an approach would prevent 6 Defendant from asking reasonable follow-up questions. As another example, Plaintiff has failed to 7 show that an order barring Defendant from asking about privileged matters would be of any real
8 utility. Also, the Court cannot prejudge whether an area of inquiry would actually touch on 9 privileged matters.

10 Accordingly, the Court grants Defendant's motion to compel and denies Plaintiff's motion to 11 quash.² The parties are to meet and confer to select a mutually agreeable date for the oral
12 deposition. The deposition shall take place by November 25, 2009. The deposition is not contingent
13 on any production of documents by Defendant.

14 Because the Court is ruling on the parties' motions on the basis of the papers alone, the 15 hearing on the motions is hereby vacated. Moreover, in light of the Court's ruling, Plaintiff's
16 request for a continuance of the hearing is moot. Plaintiff is advised that she may seek advice and 17 information from the Legal Help Center located in this courthouse. A flyer describing the Center is

27 ² The Court acknowledges Defendant's contention that the motion to quash should not be 28 considered because Plaintiff did not give Defendant 35 days notice as required under the Civil Local Rules. See Civ. L.R. 7-2(a). However, because Plaintiff's opposition to the motion to compel is essentially the equivalent of Plaintiff's motion to quash, the violation of the Local Rules is not material.

1 enclosed herewith. Defendant shall cooperate in scheduling this deposition so as to permit Plaintiff
2 a reasonable opportunity to consult with the Center.

3 This order disposes of Docket Nos. 167, 178, 179, and 180.
